House or home — designing better living spaces

Each year, over one million single-family houses are built in this country and architects are involved in the design of a very small percentage of those. Is it possible to design a sensible, beautiful, and affordable home for most Americans without sacrificing those qualities that make any house a real home?

Jeremiah Eck FAIA, the BSA guest lecturer on September 23, believes the answer is an unequivocal yes and his BSA slide-lecture demonstrates that.

Eck, a Boston architect who leads off this season's BSA Lecture Series, is the founding principal of Jeremiah Eck Architects and a design award-winning architect specializing in home design. Eck also teaches and serves as a design critic and program advisor at Harvard, the Massachusetts College of Art, Boston College, and the Boston

The September 23 presentation by Eck begins with a 5:30 pm reception at the BAC, 320 Newbury St., Boston; the lecture begins at 6:00 pm. There is no charge for BSA members; non-members are welcome and pay $4.00 or may join the BSA at the door.

This 1998-1999 BSA Lecture Series also includes presentations on theater design and engineering, unbuilt architecture, interior design, an architect's view of Asian culture, the public's role in shaping public transportation, courtyards and Italian churches, Modernism, and an urban designer's view of the cities of Vietnam. A full schedule is inserted in this issue of the ChapterLetter; for additional copies of this schedule, call 617-951-1433x221.

BSA hosts candidates forum on design

Chris Lydon

Almost a dozen candidates are seeking election to the U.S. House of Representatives seat formerly held by Rep. Joe Kennedy. The BSA has invited all of these candidates to a special Candidates Forum on September 8 at the Old South Meeting House, which is co-sponsoring this event. The candidates running for this seat include former BSA Board Member George Bachrach and former Boston mayor Ray Flynn.

This forum will be moderated by Chris Lydon, the host of the WBUR radio program "The Connection" and a member of the BSA Board of Directors. This forum, unusual because of its specific focus on community and urban design and the impact of design on our lives, is free and open to all BSA members and friends and to the public. Join us at 6:00 pm at Old South Meeting House...but first call 617-951-1433x221 to reserve your seat.

Pelli presents his South Station Tower

Cesar Pelli FAIA comes to Boston this month for a special BSA presentation on his design for the new tower that will rise over South Station (pictured right).

Pelli's presentation, which is co-sponsored by the Boston Architectural Center, will occur at the BAC and begins with a 5:30 pm reception; the presentation begins at 6:00 pm on September 24. There is no charge for BSA members but RSVPs are required; non-members are welcome and pay $4.00 or may join the BSA at the door. To reserve your seat, call 617-951-1433x221.

This special presentation is hosted by the BSA Urban Design Committee chaired by John Stebbins AIA and Pete Smith AIA. Join us.

Courthouse design conference scheduled

The national AIA Committee on Architecture for Justice hosts its Third International Conference on Courthouse Design in September in Toronto.

The conference, set for September 9-12, is co-sponsored by the U.S. General Services Administration, the National Center for State Courts, and several Canadian agencies including Public Works and Government Services of Canada. The intent is to bring together justice facilities leaders from the U.S., Canada and elsewhere to determine how best to design for the delivery of justice in the coming century.

Richard Meier FAIA, Arthur Erickson and numerous judicial and other design professionals, including several Canadian and U.S. judges, will be participating.

For program details and registration information, call the AIA at 800-242-3847 or visit the Website at www.e-architect.com.

Preservation/restoration program set for Build Boston

A three-day program of workshops at Build Boston this year focuses once again on a broad range of preservation/restoration issues for architects, contractors, engineers and facility owners.

This year the program includes these workshops:

- ◆ Preserving Modernism (workshop #105)
- ◆ Laying the groundwork for preservation — a matter of investigation (workshop #123)
- ◆ Diagnosis without destruction (workshop #146)
- ◆ What a pane! Finding the right replacement windows for large-scale historic rehabilitation projects (workshop #207)
- ◆ Conservation of Gropius House (workshop #223)
- ◆ HVAC systems for historic buildings (workshop #248)
- ◆ Architectural Darwinism and the technical challenges of preserving modern buildings (workshop #346)

To register for any of these sessions or anything else at Build Boston, visit our Website at www.buildboston.com or call 800-544-1898.

Vision for Boston's seaport is applauded

On June 25, the BSA's SeaPort Focus Team presented the BSA's "Shared Vision for the Seaport" at a major public forum sponsored by the Boston Redevelopment Authority. Of the several presentations offered that evening, the BSA Focus Team's clearly captured the imagination of the public and professional audiences and was widely praised for its professionalism, its thoughtfulness, and its comprehensive approach to the planning of the new Seaport District.

For that presentation and for other uses, the Focus Team prepared an excellent eight-page flyer titled "A Shared Vision for the Seaport/Recommendations for the Masterplan." For a copy of this publication, for which there is no charge, send your request with a 55¢, 9"x12" SASE to Seaport/AL, BSA, 52 Broad St., Boston 02109.

The creation of this publication and the extraordinary work of the Focus Team over the past year have been led by Constance Bodurow, AICP, Assoc. AIA and Todd Lee FAIA, who serve as Co-Chairs of the Focus Team.

Ideas competition targets Charles/MGH ① station

The MBTA and Mass. General are co-sponsoring an ideas competition for the renovation of the Charles/ MGH ① Station in Boston. The purpose of the competition is to solicit ideas for the transformation of the Charles Circle area in general and the station in particular into a welcoming and accessible gateway to the neighboring communities and institutions.

The jury is chaired by David Lee FAIA (Stull and Lee), and includes Ellen Donham-Jones, R.A. (MIT), Graham Gund FAIA (Graham Gund Architects), Linda Haar, AICP (Boston Redevelopment Authority), Alex Krieger FAIA (Chan Krieger & Associates), Frank Mead AIA (Mead Consulting), and Cynthia Smith, ASLA (The Halvorson Company). The jury has the authority to award up to $30,000 in prizes.

This competition is open to everyone; there are no restrictions or qualifications to participate. A competition registration form and package of background materials is available for $25.00; send your request and an additional payment of $6.00 for postage (both amounts payable to MBTA — Charles/ MGH Station Competition) to MBTA Contract Administration, Room 5610, 10 Park Plaza, Boston 02116. The deadline is October 2.

New England in perspective: a BSA exhibit

Some of the world's most celebrated architectural perspectivists work and live in New England. These artists selected their favorite drawings of current and recent New England projects for a group show at the BSA beginning this month. Twenty-five drawings are on exhibit in The Architects Building from September 8 through December 30. Many of these drawings were commissioned by BSA members and other architects in the region to illustrate new projects. One example of these is Frank Costantino's watercolor (see p. 2) of a proposed tower designed by Cesar Pelli & Associates for Boston's South Station, the subject of a BSA presentation by Pelli this month.

In addition to Costantino, the artists whose work is on exhibit include James Earl, Gary Irish, Wayne Jacques, John Margolies, Paul McMahan, Michael O'Bierne, Steve Oles FAIA, Steve Rich, Tomatsu Yamamoto, Andrzej Zarzycki and the artists at Advanced Media Design...and all of these exhibitors are local members of the American Society of Architectural Perspectivists, which was founded in Boston over a decade ago.

A special reception open to all BSA members and friends is scheduled for 6:00 pm on Tuesday, September 15. Join us for a marvelous evening and a wonderful exhibit.

This exhibit — and the annual BSA exhibits program in general — is made possible by the generous support of Suffolk Construction Company.

*Robert J. Taylor AIA, Chairman
BSA Exhibits Committee*

Honor Awards deadline is now

September 21 is the deadline for submissions to this year's BSA Honor Awards for Design Excellence Program. For copies of the Call for Entries, call 617-951-1433x221.

Live at the BSA

The first-floor (street level) floor in The Architects Building is available to lease. For details, call Kate Gilbert at 617-951-1433x234.

Cambridge Seven presents its work overseas

Cambridge Seven Associates principal Chuck Redmon FAIA comes to the BSA on September 21 to describe the firm's design work outside the U.S.

This presentation is part of the BSA International Committee's monthly series of presentations by New England architects and others working around the globe. These informal, wine-and-cheese evenings at the BSA are free and have proved to be excellent design, marketing, and networking opportunities.

Join us at The Architects Building at 6:00 pm on September 21. RSVP: 617-951-1433x221.

BSA International Committee*

Japan, Thailand and Australia tours still open

The Children's Museum in Himeji, Japan, designed by Tadao Ando, is among the projects we will be visiting on the BSA tour to Japan

The BSA-sponsored international architecture tours to Japan (October 29-November 13), Thailand (December 18-29), and Australia (March 1999) are still open to BSA members and friends. For detailed program and other information, call the BSA's tour manager, Architects Abroad, at 800-272-8808 or 415-955-2753.

Young architects honored in new BSA program

Jurors for the BSA's inaugural Young Architects Juried Exhibition have honored six young professionals for their design of 10 projects, some of which are pictured on this page. This program, developed by BSA Commissioner of Design Robert Miklos AIA of Schwartz/Silver Architects, was designed to raise professional and public awareness of the role of young architects in the evolution of architectural design in the greater Boston community. The jurors for this first-time program, which drew over 40 submissions, were Laurie Hawkinson (Smith-Miller + Hawkinson, Architects, New York City), Reed Kroloff (Senior Editor, Architecture), and Mack Scogin AIA (Scogin Elam and Bray Architects, Atlanta). Program chairman Miklos and juror Reed Kroloff join Elizabeth Padjen FAIA, Editor of ArchitectureBoston, for a discussion of these award-winning projects and of the roles of young architects in our community at a special forum during Build Boston in November. The forum is free and open to all and is scheduled for 4:00 pm, Thursday, November 19 at Build Boston (event #353). Awards presentations also will be made during this panel discussion and written jury comments will be available at that time.

Other projects honored by the jury and not pictured here are these:

The Grafton House and Studio (Grafton MA) for Mr. and Mrs. Albert Roberts by Stephen Atkinson (Cambridge MA)

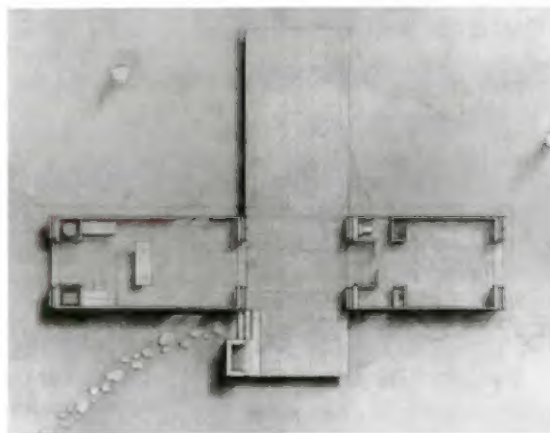

The St. Jude Mission Chapel and Community Center (Alamogordo NM) for The Rev. Daniel Barfield by Stephen Atkinson (Cambridge MA)

EX/plate chess house (Palm Desert CA) for Dr. Ming-Te Lu and Dr. Debra Lu by Richard Rosa (Cambridge MA)

Teng Studio (Lincoln MA) for Prof. Emma Teng by Stephen K. Chung (Cambridge MA)

Children's Lockers (Brookside Lower School, Bloomfield Hills MI) for The Cranbrook Educational Community by Theodore Galante (Cambridge MA)

Children's Lunch Tables (Brookside Lower School, Bloomfield Hills MI) for The Cranbrook Educational Community by Theodore Galante (Cambridge MA)

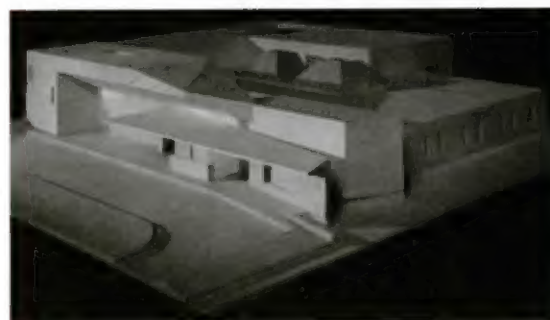

The Zachary House (Zachary LA) for Dr. and Mrs. John B. Atkinson and the Rev. Jerome Dugas by Stephen Atkinson (Cambridge MA)

Private Residence (Keego Harbor MI) for David Vawter and Christina Lewrenzetti by Theodore Galante (Cambridge MA)

21 Follen Street (Cambridge MA) for Kurt and Laure-Anne Brown by Diane McCafferty (interior designer, Cambridge MA) and David Stern AIA (architect, Boston)

VA Medical Center (Providence RI) for the US Department of Veterans Affairs by Kevin Sullivan AIA (Payette Associates, Boston)

Warning! You are about to receive multiple copies of the Build Boston program

Every year at this time, the BSA office receives a fair number of calls from members and others asking why they received more than one copy of the Build Boston program. Isn't it wasteful to send multiple copies? The answer is probably best illustrated by reprinting a 1994 letter to the ChapterLetter along with the Editor's response to that letter.

I suspect that other members may have experienced the similar situation of receiving multiple copies of the Build Boston program...I'm not talking of one or two extra copies but, in my case, five in all were delivered in the same mail. Four of them were addressed to the same name, varying only slightly in terms of punctuation, middle initials, etc....I can't believe in this age of technology that this problem can't be solved, or perhaps it is just another example of a smart technology intended to save time and money but working only partially and doing the exact opposite...

LYNN OSBORN (all caps)

Lynn Osborn (upper- and lower-case)

Lynn Osborn AIA (no comma)

Lynn C. Osborn, AIA (middle initial and comma)

Ed. note: Your final sentence is about right. We use about three dozen different mailing lists each year to mail approximately 100,000 Build Boston programs throughout the country. The mailing lists are acquired from numerous sources. Some are on disk, some are on sticky-back labels, some are handwritten. We then pay a high-tech mailing house to merge the lists to the extent possible to eliminate duplication. However...the technology available, as you surmised, cannot make fine distinctions such as those evident in your name(s) noted above. Rather, the computer reads any variation, such as a middle initial or a comma, as an entirely different name. Nonetheless, each year we are able to purge approximately 10,000 names as duplicates. Our only further recourse is to hire people to sort manually the tens of thousands of labels we acquire. It is far less expensive to mail extra copies at bulk rates...and to urge you, as we urge all readers every year, to pass the extra copies to clients and colleagues who may not be on anyone's mailing list.

Earn free workshops as a Build Boston volunteer

Every year over 100 BSA members and friends donate their time to make Build Boston a success. These volunteers help set up the BSA Resource Center and Design Gallery, monitor the workshops, and help staff the information booth. In exchange for this volunteer time, each individual attends workshops free of charge. There are still volunteer opportunities available for Build Boston this year. Join the fun and attend for free...call 617-951-1433x234 for details.

Design/Build program set for Build Boston

An extraordinary group of architects and contractors has been working for the past several years with building industry attorneys, insurance professionals, and other project-delivery experts to refine significantly the project-delivery processes in Massachusetts in both the public and private sectors.

Currently chaired by former BSA president Roger Goldstein FAIA (Goody, Clancy & Associates) and AGC representative Jack Hobbs AIA (RF Walsh Co.), this Task Force on Recommended Practices in the Building Industry has assembled for Build Boston this year an exceptional package of workshops on design/build and related project-delivery issues.

This is the same task force that two years ago published Client Advisor, the BSA/AGC project-delivery bible (which is available from the BSA as Special Publication #176).

The program set for Build Boston includes these sessions:

- ◆ Project-delivery systems...the clients' perspectives (workshop #102)
- ◆ Procurement of design and construction services...from the perspective of the owner/client (workshop #120)
- ◆ Contract administration: it is broken and we can fix it (workshop #140)
- ◆ Design/Build — Is it for me? How do I select the right team? (workshop #203)
- ◆ Structuring the best design/build team (workshop #220)
- ◆ Changing roles of design and construction professionals: risk-allocation and insurance issues (workshop #240)

It would be wise to register now for this six-workshop series; we expect it will sell out quickly. Panelists include the leading architects, contractors, clients/owners, attorneys, and allied professionals in the industry.

To register, visit the Build Boston Website at www.buildboston.com or register by phone at 800-544-1898.

What is the role of Boston design firms in the global marketplace?

Mercury in the 90s. Muggy. More news of political and economic turmoil from Japan, Russia and other hot spots. Is this really the right climate for Boston's architectural community to debate globalization?

Those who attended the roundtable at the BSA on July 14 thought so. Arranged jointly by World Architecture and the BSA's International Committee, a blue ribbon panel conducted a collaborative discussion on issues and opportunities for the Boston architectural community. Participants represented Boston-area design firms with extensive experience in the global marketplace, overseas pioneers and practitioners thinking about stepping into the arena.

Questions included: "Is this the 'American moment' in international architecture?" (also raised in an Architectural Record editorial, July 1998)... "How can global architecture help create a mutually beneficial culture in which enduring and ingenious design transcends the current trend towards celebrity architecture?"... "Will foreign intervention/ integration in developing countries eventually lead to self-sufficiency on the part of the new market or to a continuing collaborative relationship?"

Panel members expressed concern about nourishing local cultural identity in the face of rapid technological and social change and discussed how to respond to hostility perceived in some parts of the world towards neo-imperialism and the brutality of "American" office towers. Focusing on the particular qualities of the Boston architectural community, the group also highlighted expertise in such areas as education, project management and urban design.

Debate was sharp, entertaining stories were told, there was no "show-boating" and time was up far too quickly.

Fortunately, Boston's globalization debate can be widened at the next meeting of the BSA International Committee on Monday, September 21, at 6:00 pm (see story on p. 4).

Peter Gorer AIA, RIBA

Ed. note: Gorer is a Boston architect with experience in strategic thinking and project management on a wide range of projects for institutions, corporations and government in the United States, Asia and Europe. His e-mail address is gowoo@mindspring.com.

Are you a leader? ...or do you wish to be?

The notion of leadership is examined annually at Build Boston in a variety of ways. This year five workshops focus specifically on the nature of leadership and leadership issues for design professionals and others in the building industry. These workshops include:

- ◆ Leadership transition...not ownership transition (workshop #114)
- ◆ Selecting leaders and building teams (workshop #167)
- ◆ Your future is now!...That leadership thing (workshop #202)
- ◆ Leading and learning through mentoring (workshop #226)
- ◆ Successful leadership transition: a case study of Payette Associates (workshop #243)

Schools and BSA forge new institutional bonds

A group of architects, architecture students, faculty, and administrators have been meeting recently to determine how to enhance the BSA's relationship to local architecture schools. Initially called the Academic Membership Committee, one of the things the group has done recently is to rename the effort the Education Network Initiative. The goal is to develop a long-term, deep working relationship among students, faculty, school administrators, and the professional design community and the BSA.

By enhancing the link between students and professionals and between faculty and practitioners, the BSA seeks to use its resources to help create a wider and longer bridge between education and practice with these three goals in mind: increased continuity between school and practice for students; a commitment to flexible, high-quality education in architecture; and increased engagement of educators, students and practitioners with the community. These goals reflect the aims of the BSA's Long-Range Plan as well as The Boyer Report on architectural education.

The BSA's Young Architects Committee is contributing to this effort as well and we are now beginning to design the initiatives and programs to make this happen and we invite you to join us. The Committee is open to all and we meet at 8:00 am on the first Wednesday of each month. The location varies so call me at 617-492-8400 for details or call Nancy Jenner at the BSA (617-951-1433x227).

Specs for small projects, future professionals and future clients, paint analysis and housing are on the agenda

Defining and promoting the value of architectural services, serving our communities, strengthening our professional networks, and otherwise becoming more effective and successful at what we do as architects are at the core of the BSA network. Among the mechanisms available to Massachusetts architects and to our allies are the scores of issue-oriented working groups that constitute the BSA. Here are a few examples of the efforts in which members and non-members are engaged today. Select one for yourself and join us...and earn AIA Learning Units in the process. For a complete guide to BSA committees and task forces, call 617-951-1433x221.

◆ Specs for small projects — Somerville spec-writer Robb Wilkinson is our guest on September 17 at the Small Firms Practice Committee's regular lunch meeting. All readers are welcome to join us at this and our other regular meetings. Recently architectural photographer Peter Vanderwarker offered us a photographer's perspective on our work. These are terrific monthly meetings and they are free. Join us. We meet for lunch on the third Thursday of each month. For more information, call Committee Chair Deb Pierce AIA at 617-964-1311.

◆ 9-year-old architects and clients — If it's July, then it is time for curriculum-design and related elementary-school programs that enhance the design-awareness of the next generation of architects and clients. The greatly expanded YouthVisions Committee is focusing its efforts on school-based programming in which architects play a major intellectual and conceptual role (without having to commit significant time to in-school activities). We are working with schools all over eastern Massachusetts and we need more architects for what has evolved into a terrific and delightful series of activities. For details, call Nancy Jenner at the BSA (617-951-1433x227). The effort is led by Elkus/Manfredi's Cammie Henderson AIA and Sunset Street's Kay Barned-Smith AIA.

◆ Design for aging — Dale Ford, Infection Control Practitioner at Mass. General, joined us at our recent Healthcare Facilities Design Committee meeting to focus specifically on airborne infections. We addressed specific issues such as hand-washing sink design and the separation of clean and soiled storage facilities. In other recent meetings we have reviewed the national AIA "Design for Aging" design award-winning projects and we have begun work on a Healthcare Resources Yellow Pages. Each month we focus on a specific healthcare design issue with guest consultants and public officials. Join us on the third Wednesday of each month at 5:15 pm at the BSA for refreshments and stimulation. For details, call Rick Heym at 617-787-2400 or Bob Humenn AIA at 617-227-6520.

◆ Paint analysis — New diagnostic technologies for the analysis of paint and the analysis of masonry, the "restoration" of Boston City Hall, composite mortar repairs to granite, brownstone replacement, "unrated" post-war buildings, the Massachusetts Preservation Project Fund grants, and threatened historic schools were on the agenda at recent meetings of the Historic Resources Committee. This extraordinary group of architects, clients, contractors, engineers, and a broad range of preservation consultants continues to sparkle and welcomes all those interested in preservation or restoration issues. Join us at our regular monthly meetings at 8:00 am on the second Thursday of each month (except August) at the BSA.

◆ ArchiCAD users — A preview of ArchiCAD 6.0 and also ArchiSITE 5.5 highlighted our late Spring meetings. We are novices and experts who meet regularly to focus on new and modified uses of ArchiCAD and we invite all those interested to join us. For more details, call Paula Collins (617-451-2727).

◆ Educational facility design — Changes we wish to recommend to GSESSS, workshops for school building officials, and a new guide to project management for educational facility design are all on our agenda and we urge you to join us at our regular meetings of the Educational Facilities Committee on the first Tuesday of each month at 9:30 am at the offices of Earl R. Flansburgh + Associates. For more details, call Earl Flansburgh FAIA at 617-367-3970.

◆ Interior designers legislation — The volatile debate between architects and interior designers on the appropriateness and/or extent of interior designer registration/licensing, the BSA-sponsored debate among 8th Congressional District candidates in September, the final draft of the Commonwealth's Construction Reform Report, and the BSA Legislator of the Year Award are on the agenda of our Legislative Affairs Committee, which invites you to join us for our regular breakfast at the BSA on the second Tuesday of each month at 8:30 am. For more information on the work of this critical BSA group, call Michael Hicks AIA at 617-267-6408.

Peter Kuttner AIA, President

Deb Pierce AIA

Earl Flansburgh FAIA

Members and non-members, architects and non-architects, are invited to taste the opportunities offered by these and over five dozen similar BSA networks of architects and allied professionals. For more information on any of these groups, call 617-951-1433x221 and ask for the Guide to Committees and Task Forces. Chairs of all BSA committees and task forces are invited to contribute to this column regularly and to ensure that meeting notes are conveyed to the BSA Website by calling Nancy Jenner at 617-951-1433x227.

Architects form new technology group

As with most design firms, the profession as a whole is often overwhelmed by the speed of the technology revolution. It is time that we became much more proactive in the ways we address the constantly evolving practice issues affected by the Internet, the Web, and other new technologies.

To take the lead, a new BSA Technology Committee meets for the first time this month for lunch at noon on September 30 to address issues such as these:

◆ Project collaboration and information management sites...How to make this dynamic and useful from design to lifecycle (What is needed and how do we get there? Management, protocols, liability, legal issues, security levels, design through construction-stage issues, e-mail/attachment, document delivery, address directories, project documentation, building lifecycle uses, Internet software and services for project sites)

◆ Legal issues...our worst fears and working toward a solution using technology (Examples and case law as it develops, drawing and project documentation, e-mail and attachments, legal reviews of site memos, difficult letters, frequently asked questions, quickest way to get into trouble and the best way to stay out of it, how to work more effectively with clients, contractors, subs, other designers)

◆ Access issues...the nuts and bolts everyone needs (hardware, connection, software, availability/suppliers, special demands of graphics and CAD, simple servers, speedier connections)

◆ Communication...information exchange through the Tower of Babel (simplifying communication, reviewing drawing standards, new object technologies, working with vendors, gaining manufacturers' support, project documentation and drawings, manufacturers' databases, details, product costs, standards and protocols, industry initiatives for translation, open drawing initiative and other cooperative efforts, software solutions)

◆ Security...who can see or use what, when? (firewalls and authorization, drawing certification and authenticity, drawing changes, views from the perspectives of the client, architect, engineer, consultant, general contractor, sub, supplier, how does all this change normal lines of communication?)

If you are interested in sharing your experiences and knowledge in this cooperative learning venture, join me and our other colleagues for lunch at the BSA at noon on September 30 (The Architects Building, 52 Broad St., Boston). Call by 9:30 am that morning to reserve your free lunch. Required viewing for the first meeting (and for an idea of what is possible now) can be found at www.evolv.com.

Ed. note: Rick and Ann Gleason run The Gleason Partnership in Boston; Rick is one of the original co-founders of the DataCAD Users Group. Ann is currently Technology Commissioner on the BSA Board of Directors.

Is your inability to write well hurting your firm?

Each year the BSA is asked by members and others to provide some in-house writing workshops...both marketing and business writing. Time after time, the complaint is that the inability to write clear prose often harms architects' efforts to secure new business, to promote work the firm has done, etc. Clear writing is as necessary for our businesses as is clear design. At Build Boston this year we once again provide a few sessions that focus on this issue specifically:

◆ Writing for impact: do's and don'ts for the design professional (workshop #109)

◆ Business writing — avoiding embarrassment, making the point (workshop #206)

◆ How to write about your design work (workshop #270)

To register for these and other Build Boston workshops, visit our Website at www.buildboston.com or call 800-544-1898.

Your free ticket is enclosed

If you think there is the slightest chance that you may miss the discount registration deadline for Build Boston this year (which is October 23), here is a safety net. Enclosed in this issue of the ChapterLetter is a free ticket that will ensure your no-cost admission to the Build Boston exhibit floor.

Of course, if you register for a workshop or other Build Boston event before October 23, you will get free admission to the exhibit floor along with it. Using the free ticket enclosed now saves you the $15.00 admission fee should you decide at the last minute just to visit the exhibit.

AIA Documents

Did you know that the BSA is the best place to buy all AIA Documents because:

- members receive a 10% discount
- we stock all AIA Documents
- we can arrange same-day and overnight delivery
- you support BSA public education programs when you buy from the BSA.

Society is the focus

Following on the extraordinary reception to the inaugural edition of ArchitectureBoston, the second quarterly issue of this new BSA magazine is included in this mailing of the ChapterLetter. This new issue of ArchitectureBoston focuses on "society" in the broadest sense by including articles on the public process, civic buildings, the Seaport District, social activism, and a good deal more. In addition to this issue's provocative editorial content, information on firms, services and products is also available in the wide range of display advertising that is financing this unique BSA publication.

The December issue will be released at Build Boston and will focus on design. Criticism and commentary on the 1998 BSA award-winning projects will be a significant part of this issue.

A special effort to distribute the December issue broadly will make it an ideal place for architects, engineers, contractors, and other allied professionals to promote themselves. BSA members receive significant discounts on advertising; if you wish more information, call 800-996-3863.

ArchitectureBoston subscriptions for non-members (BSA members receive it at no cost), gift certificates, and back issues are available from the BSA; call 617-951-1433x221.

Deadline is now for guide to consultants, contractors, manufacturers' reps

It's time once again to submit your listing for the BSA's Fall 1998 Guide to Consultants, Contractors and Manufacturers. This is the first edition to include manufacturers' representatives in addition to consultants and contractors. The Guide is a great marketing tool: it is distributed at no charge to 4,000 BSA members and reaches even more design and specification professionals through our Website (www.architects.org). It is also used as a reference tool by the BSA staff when architects call us seeking consultants, contractors and product information.

If you are a manufacturer's representative, contractor or consultant in the building industry and wish to be included in the BSA's Guide to Consultants, Contractors and Manufacturers' Representatives, call the BSA at 617-951-1433x221 for a listing form and return it with payment by September 15.

Join the residential design marketing team

If you design houses and other residential projects and you want to promote your firm, you are invited to meet others with similar marketing challenges and share creative ideas about running your business profitably. Join the new residential marketing team forming at the BSA.

There are immediate opportunities for visibility through the New England Home Show, North American Home Show, and the BSA's Residential and Small Commercial Project Handbook. The group also is developing advertising and other promotional strategies, inviting guest experts to lead sessions on a variety of marketing and practice issues, and creating the future of this special group. Join us at the first team meeting next month on October 14 at 8:30 am at the BSA. Please call/write me if you plan to attend, have questions or ideas, or just want to introduce yourself!

Experience the marketing wizardry

The BSA's new breakfast group for design firm marketing and public relations professionals is off to a running start; it meets regularly at 8:00 am on the fourth Wednesday of each month. The format is informal, open discussion; each month the topic changes and the roundtable is led by a different member of the group, making for varied and lively sessions.

If you are a design firm marketing wizard, know one, or would like to become one, you belong in this group. This month on September 23, Jean Valence of Blackridge, Ltd. leads a discussion about "Creating a Firm of Marketers"; we discuss empowering senior and mid-level staff to develop a marketing voice, own their own clients, and represent the firm publicly. Join us! Bring your ideas for topics for future sessions as we plan the agenda through the Spring of 1999.

Label all photos

The BSA receives numerous photographs from architects and our allies every month – and too often such photos are unlabeled (no project identification, no architect identification, no photographer's credit). As you might assume, inadequately labeled photos get thrown out by most publication editors largely because they almost always get separated from press releases or other descriptive material sent along with them and there is no way to identify what they are. Label all photos. Please.

Poole and DPIC co-sponsor BSA Honor Awards

Doug Poole and Chris Poole of Poole Professional Ltd., the professional liability insurance advisors in Wakefield, and the California-based Design Professionals Insurance Company (DPIC) once again have provided generous financial underwriting for the annual BSA Honor Awards Program.

In a tradition that began a few years ago, Poole Professional Ltd. and DPIC have provided $3,500 annually to help support the administration of the BSA's most prestigious design awards program. Both of these co-sponsors also have supported other BSA programs and services for many years. The BSA depends on the generosity of allies such as these to finance the extensive array of design and technical assistance programs the BSA administers for its members and allies. We are grateful.

New England architects gather in October

The AIA New England Annual Conference takes place in Worcester, October 2 - 4, 1998. I am looking forward to an exciting weekend of golf, tours, workshops, and congeniality with architects throughout New England. The registration deadline has just passed. If you neglected to send in your registration, call 617-951-1433x221 today — it may not be too late.

Apologies are due

On page 1 of the last issue of the ChapterLetter (the July/August edition), we ran a piece on the "Art by Architects" exhibit curated by architectural photographer Peter Vanderwarker. The exhibit hung in The Architects Building throughout the Summer and included the artwork of many BSA members. We listed those members with one exception: we inadvertently failed to include Lawrence Chan AIA among the list of those whose work was on exhibit...and for that oversight we apologize.

Now serving...Rebecca Barnes named to designer-selection panel

Rebecca Barnes AIA has been appointed to a two-year term on the Massachusetts Convention Center Authority's Designer-Selection Panel. This six-member panel administers the selection of programmers, architects, engineers, and other design professionals to be retained for building projects at all Convention Center Authority facilities.

Barnes, who is currently a member of the Executive Committee of the BSA Board of Directors, has served in numerous leadership roles on large-scale planning and design teams. She combines broad expertise in architecture, urban design, and urban planning with a similar depth of experience in managing professional teams in both the public and private sectors in Boston, Seattle, Puerto Rico, and elsewhere. During the past 20 years, Barnes has compiled an impressive record of high-quality work on complex, highly visible, urban infrastructure projects and in public policy planning. Barnes, who co-chaired the Washington Street Connections public charrette for the BSA in 1996-97, is currently the Director of Architecture and Urban Planning for Boston's Frederick R. Harris Inc.

Barnes symbolizes the architectural community's commitment to active and visible participation in all levels of public service and voluntary community activism. If you would like more information on volunteer opportunities in your community or if you are serving in a community role yourself (an historic study committee, a chamber of commerce, a school committee, etc.), call me at 617-951-1433x227 so we can share your leadership example with our readers.

BSA welcomes MP

During the Summer, the BSA staff returned to full strength when Melodie Pharms of Malden joined us as Receptionist/Meeting Scheduler/Committee Mailing Liaison and the voice you hear when you call the BSA. Melodie comes to the BSA with experience earned at the Office of the Inspector General, Harvard's Countway Library, Student Advantage, and a variety of other customer-service roles. Drop in and introduce yourself.

Leads on new work are now available exclusively to AIA members through an AIAOnline service developed with F. W. Dodge. The service is available by subscribing to the Architects Channel through AIAOnline. You customize your requests by geographic region and lists of leads are delivered weekly to your desktop. To set up your service, select <Architects Channel> from the opening AIAOnline screen and follow the posted instructions to download the BackWeb client software. When prompted, select F.W. Dodge Reports and then choose <Customize Channel> to designate your state or region of the U.S.

A very useful practice tool is the Design Firm Management & Administration Report, a newsletter often excerpted in the ChapterLetter. In the August issue, for example, there are brief reports on "What to look for in A/E firm financial software," "Bonuses are big news in '98 A/E firm compensation," "Do your technical marketers need this 12-step makeover?," "Is CM now the best growth option?" and "What's wrong with your performance-review process?" The newsletter is brief, the articles are brief, and the tips are often worthwhile. For subscription information, call 212-244-0360 (Institute of Management & Administration).

The Architects' Leadership Institute has issued its call for nominations for this year. AIA members with solid management skills who are ready to move on to the next level, architects who want to refine their current leadership roles/skills, and members eager to use talents, training and experiences to serve their communities in more significant ways are encouraged to attend. Members in Massachusetts who have participated in past years have praised this program for its effectiveness. For more information, call Emily Cole at 202-626-7445/colee@aiaemail.aia.org.

A survey of facility decision-makers, conducted by BSA member Janis Reuters AIA, provides a variety of interesting insights on the space needs of facility managers and how these managers plan to meet those needs — expansion of existing facilities, structural changes in existing facilities, moving, alternative work arrangements, etc. For a copy of this survey titled "Survey on Facility Space Management," call Design Management Corp. at 508-650-1891.

You can be a critic in print. Banker & Tradesman is seeking another contributing architecture critic to share monthly review duties with Jonathan Hale. If you are interested in this — or in other opportunities to write for Banker & Tradesman — call Michelle Deacon at 617-428-5100, tell her you are a BSA member and that we sent you.

The future of the house is being imagined at MIT. Special program investigating new technologies and other influences on home design is under way at MIT where researchers are attempting to imagine a house that adapts to our needs, reacts to environmental influences, and lets us know when things are not working. For more information on this effort led by Chris Luebckman and Kent Larson, call Elizabeth Thomson at 617-258-5402.

Architects found guilty. Recently The Boston Globe reported that Newton city architect Abraham Aly AIA of Jamaica Plain has been convicted of fraud and bribery by soliciting and receiving kick-backs from contractors doing city work... In other unsavory news, Massachusetts architect Jack Palanjian has been placed on probation by the Massachusetts Board of Registration of Architects for six months for failing to report that his architectural stamp had been used by someone other than an architect on documents that were not prepared by the licensee.

Wind-resistant design is the subject of the latest NCARB monograph available as a teaching tool for architects (who can earn 42 AIA Learning Units with this monograph). For more information on this and other NCARB Learning Units opportunities, call 202-783-6500 or visit NCARB at www.ncarb.org.

Preservation Technology and Training Grants applications are due December 18. For guidelines, call 318-357-6464.

Preservation grants and a preservation conference are on the agenda: the Massachusetts Preservation Projects Fund grant application deadline is October 16; call 617-727-8470 for details... And the 1998 Massachusetts Statewide Preservation Conference is on September 25 in Boston; call 617-727-8470 for details on this as well.

The value of good design in building a successful business is the focus of a new Inc. Magazine collaboration with the AIA. Produced with the Corporate Design Foundation, this AIA/Inc. effort began with the June issue of Inc. and is aimed at the leaders of America's fastest-growing companies. This effort to promote awareness of the impact of good design is part of the national advertising campaign the AIA has been conducting for several years.

PRagmatism — The June issue of Architecture magazine featured an article about PR and communications for professional service firms entitled "Getting Noticed." Written by our own Elizabeth Padjen FAIA, editor of ArchitectureBoston, the article quotes national leaders in the field and provides practical advice on gaining visibility for your firm and working with the media. For a free copy of this article (available only by mail), AIA members in Massachusetts should send requests with a 32¢ SASE (#10 envelope) to Getting Noticed/LO, BSA, 52 Broad St., Boston 02109; non-members should include a $5.00 handling fee payable to the BSA along with the SASE.

The best 20th-century architecture? Do you have several favorite projects around the globe that you believe represent the best the profession can produce? In its 6/98 issue, Time magazine presented its choices of the 20th-century's best: the Chrysler Building (William Van Alen), the Chapel at Ronchamp (Corbu), the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank (Norman Foster FAIA), the Guggenheim Bilbao (Frank Gehry FAIA), the Seagram Building (Mies), and the Sydney Opera House (Joern Utzon).

Woodworking and display suppliers are listed in a new directory titled "Starting Point/Project Resource Guide for Wood and Related Component Specifiers, Producers, Contractors & Architects." Call 202-546-7533 for ordering information on this directory of 800 firms in the U.S.

"Managing Risk Through Contract Language" is the title of a new risk-management resource for design professionals. This is part of the Guidelines for Improving Practice series of practice tools prepared by Victor O. Schinnerer & Co., the liability insurance underwriter. This 65-page booklet focuses on two dozen major contract issues (certifications, change orders, code compliance, indemnification, payment applications, etc.). A much more comprehensive companion publication titled "Understanding and Managing Risk" is a 300-page guide designed by Schinnerer as an educational tool as well as a reference publication for architects. In fact it offers an education program that can earn AIA members up to 72 AIA Learning Units. For ordering information regarding both publications, call 301-961-9800. (Reference copies of both publications are in the BSA Members Library.)

September 28, 1998 is the deadline for proposals architects and artists wish to submit to First Night for its millennium celebration in 15 months. For proposal guidelines, call 617-542-1399/jkaufman@firstnight.org. And if the BSA can provide moral or other support, call 617-951-1433x232.

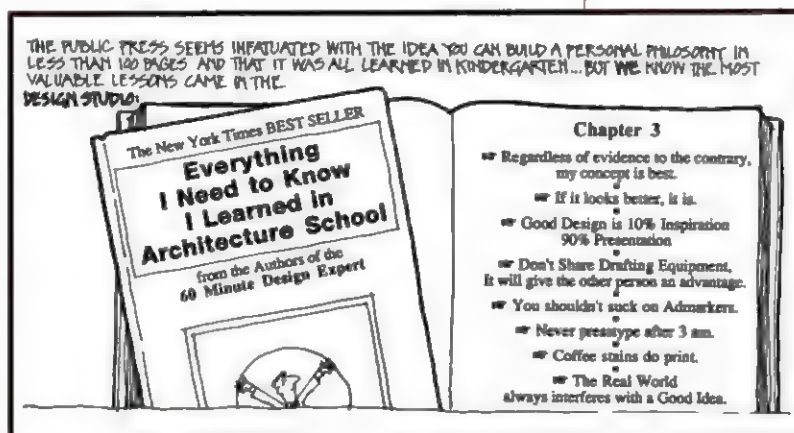

Construction management and design/build were the subjects of the 6/98 issue of ENR. Of the 100 largest construction management-at-risk companies in the U.S., ENR says that three are in Massachusetts: Perini (#13), George B. H. Macomber (#76), and Shawmut Design and Construction (#78). ENR also lists three Massachusetts companies in the top 100 construction management-for-fee companies:

Raytheon Engineers & Constructors (#4), Stone & Webster (#53), and Perini (#72). Finally, ENR lists four Massachusetts firms among the top 100 design/build companies: Raytheon (#5), Stone & Webster (#9), Perini (#63), and Hodess Building Co. (#96).

"A Cultural Resource Directory" has been published by Very Special Arts Massachusetts in order to provide information on the accessibility of Massachusetts institutions including visual arts museums and facilities, performing arts centers and theaters, sports and entertainment complexes, movie theaters, and historical/educational/cultural sites including parks and zoos. The Boston Civic Design Commission, which reviews major development proposals in Boston, regularly holds its public meetings on the first Tuesday of each month. All meetings are at 5:15 pm in the Kane Simonian Room (the BRA Board Room) on the 9th floor of Boston City Hall; meetings are open to the public.

Looking for renderers/perspectivists? The American Society of Architectural Perspectivists (ASAP) has opened a new office in Washington DC; the address is Suite 503, 1518 K Street NW, Washington DC 20005 (202-737-4401/fax 202-638-4833). The office opened officially on July 1. Founded over a decade ago in Boston, ASAP moved into the BSA's offices several years ago when its membership growth required professional management provided by the BSA. As that growth continued and ASAP expanded its programs and services, the BSA helped it identify an association-management company in Washington that now has assumed full responsibility for ASAP's administration.

Carl Koch FAIA

Carl Koch FAIA died at age 86 in Cambridge in July; he was the husband of Bruni Rauschmaier Fletcher-Koch. Koch graduated from Harvard in 1934 and studied architecture with Walter Gropius at the Graduate School of Design until he graduated in 1937. Koch was a champion of low-cost housing and well-known for the design of prefabricated homes and the development of the Techcrete building system. During WWII, Koch was a senior architect with the National Housing Agency before serving in the Navy. He was an avid sailor. Koch was the designer of one New England's cluster housing developments, Conantum in Concord. He also designed and developed Lewis Wharf in Boston. In 1995, the BSA honored Koch with its Award of Honor, the highest form of recognition the BSA can bestow upon an architect. A memorial service was held at the Constitution Museum in the Charlestown Navy Yard in August. Memorial gifts may be made to the Carl Koch Memorial Fund, POB 80521, Stoneham MA 02180.

The Boston Society of Architects ChapterLetter

The BSA ChapterLetter is published monthly by the Boston Society of Architects, 52 Broad Street, Boston 02109-4301. The ChapterLetter is a service provided by AIA members in Massachusetts to the profession, the public, and everyone else with a sense of humor or an interest in 20th-century America. (For out-of-state subscription information, call 617-951-1433x228/fax: 617-951-0845.)

Letters to the editor, suggestions, criticism, encouragement, and manifestations of the light touch are welcome. Typed, double-spaced material intended for publication must reach the BSA by the deadline dates listed on page 1; diskettes (accompanying hard copy in excess of 250 words) are appreciated (PC diskettes are preferred but if you send a Mac diskette be sure it is labeled as such). Submissions may also be e-mailed to the BSA at bsarch@architects.org. Appropriate submissions are edited and published as space, temperament, and prejudices permit.

The BSA is a non-profit, membership service organization and has been an advocate of architectural excellence and public awareness of architecture since 1867.
